A. T. Stewart, the Crasens, of

New York, is thus depicted: Stewart is an Irishman, not far from sixty years of age, about five feet ten inches in height, with sandy hair and yellow goa-tee, rather stylish in his appearance and make-up, and gentlemanly in his manners to everybody whom he thinks it worth while to be civil to. His clerks however, seldom see any evidence of his having any of the milk of human kindness in his cocoanut. He is the owner of more real estate than Astor, and in such investment rather inclines to menopolize large blocks of property such as will at once appreciate from the very fact of his ownership of them. He owns nearly all Bleccker street from Broadway to Sullivan street-including that once stylish line of palaces, Depau Row. Then he owns the Metropolitan which he bought of the Van Reasselaers for $530,000. From this sizeable pile he receives about $100,000 a year as rent, and he would have no difficulty in selling it for a million dollars to-day. His up town store and its connections occupy the most of a block, and his removal thither sent all the property in the vicinity up at a bound, to almost double its previous price. Down town, his wholesale store on Broadway, Chambers and Read streets, is a million-dollar property, although the entire cost of the lots and the marble palace upon them could not have been over four thousand dolfars. At the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street he is building a man idence, which will outvie in exterior beauty and interior appointments any private residence in America. It is of white marble, abundantly ornamented with columns, capitals, and carved work, and as an indication of the inside work, I may whisper in your ear that the stairways alone are estimated to cost some sixty thousand dollars. But I stop to take breath!

Rarely had the adventurous mountaineers seen these vallies before the country was attached to the United tah, and all of Nevada and Utah

The first settlers in this valley, and, inde f, of any note in the Territory, was a blud of Mormons, numbering 143. Lufering the valley through what they have thenominated Emigration Canon, they feached here on the 24th day of July, 1837, and were better entitled to the appellation of fugitives from justice than that of pioncers of civilization.

At the time they arrived here war existed between the United States and Mexico. The United States forces had overrun the country, and it was by the right of war subject to the United States.

A treaty of peace was signed by the two powers on the 2d day of February. 1815, and was ratified and exchanged within four mentlis from its date, according to the provisions thereof. Our armies had possession of the country, and by the treaty our belligerent rights were acknowledged, and from that time the United States had quiet and peaceable possession of the whole country.

These facts are mentioned so that the subject may be the better understood bereafter, and because there is a mistaken sensibility on the part of somean entire misconception of facts, when considering the unjust, the wholly unfounded claim which has been put forth by Mormons to this country.

Interesting matter on every page. Hon. Amos Kendall, Gen. Jackson's old Postmaster-General; is building a church in Washington City, at a goat of $75,000, which he intends to present to one of the Baptist societies of that city, Major-General M. P. Lowry, who com-manded a division of febels at the battle of Nashville and elsewhere, and who surrendered to Sherman in North-Chie lina, has taken to preaching. He has two Bentist churches in Tippah county. Miss: He got converted during the ver though it took the bardest sort of texts to do it.

It is observed by the reading portion of this community, and largely commented upon by the outside press of the country, that the Mormon leaders never defined their polygamous system upon the ground of a high and lofty morality; but, that they invariably defend it by contrast with the crimes existing in the large cities of the world, and then exclaiming, "we are better than these." It is a sorry defense where an organization, claiming the name of religion, is compelled to seek comparison with other crimes, as a means of justification, and because it is thought by church leaders, to be a crime of a lower grade than those cited, it must be of necessity a virtue and a religion.

THE OVERLAND DISPATCH Co.-Public attention is directed to new advertisement of the re-organization of the late Butterfield Despatch Co., under the charters of the Kansas and New York State Legislatures. Read over the adverment carefully, and note the facts and time tables, therein given. The new incorporation assure the public who are solicited for their patronage this year. from these surrounding territories, that the accidents, delays and drawbacks consequent on the past year's management by the formet company's agentwill be more than made up for by diligent care and increase despatch, in the delivery of freight this summer and fall. A combination of untoward events unfavorably affected the success, accommodation and popularity of this line last year: but such will not occur in 42 8 MO 274. 4 M.

THE wasted defense of Polygamy, promised us by the Telegraph, exhausted itself in the Miltonian articles, at which the outside press of the country, has laughed exceedingly. The Telegraph, sick newly-invented rifle, it was accordentally of the self-assumed task, now backs out discharged, part of its contents entering of its public pledge, by asserting that "the burden of proof rests with those who oppose it." In the name of the legal attacht of Utah, and representing those men who honor and glory in beautiful womanhood, as the proud and noble equal of generous and lofty manhood, we invite all Mormons-both men and women-bond and free-to attend the lectures on Polygamy, given every Sabbath evening, in Independence Hall, by Rev. Norman McLeod. Come and hear. You are all welcome. Your leaders lie in their throats when they tell you that tory ov thrashing masheens and we are your enemies—that we are plottwe are your enemies-that we are plotting for your ruin and destruction. We are lecturing earnestly, hopefully, for your deliverance from a degrading bondage, and from the practice of an infamous system, which will in the coming days recoil with fearful effect upon those who originated and imposed it upon a confiding people, under the guise of religione We exclude none from this general invitation. We have already noticed prominent Mormons at these lectures. They are welcome, all are welcome. Come and learn the truth.
